

East Harlem Fellowship Increases Member Giving By 30% Through Text To Give

Sofia Alvarez currently works as both the treasurer and executive director for East Harlem Fellowship in New York. She is also part of the board of directors, which means she needs to work as efficiently as possible to maintain her balancing act of responsibilities. Efficiency became paramount in 2020 too, when in-person services were no longer possible in light of COVID-19.

Without being able to host in-person services, it became harder for East Harlem Fellowship's congregation to financially support the church through their tithes. Fortunately, they had switched to Aplos Text to Give in December, which turned out to be the perfect solution for remote services. "With Text to Give, people can easily give during online services, so the two coincide very well together," Sofia said.

Previously, East Harlem Fellowship provided an option for people to give online through Paypal, but they wanted to empower their people to give in the moment during services via their mobile devices. With Aplos Text to Give, people could tithe with a simple text message once they completed a few easy steps for setup. To launch the feature, East Harlem Fellowship provided the Text to Give phone number in its Sunday announcement with the pastor speaking on how easy the initial set-up was. The church started using the feature at the beginning of their next service. They've kept the Text to Give announcement on their website and a banner placed in the bottom of their live-streams.

Giving has ramped up considerably since the start of online services, with 20% of active donors now giving online, and Text to Give accounting for 15% of overall giving. “The launch was a success mainly because of the simplicity,” Sofia said. “People want everything to be done easily these days, and Text to Give offers that. Even if COVID-19 didn’t exist, we still want to offer this solution to the congregation, since people typically prepare their tithes at home by writing checks, but sometimes forget them.” She and the rest of East Harlem Fellowship are excited to see how Text to Give can continue to help over the coming months, especially once in-person services resume.

When asked if she could describe Text to Give in one sentence, Sofia had this to say:

“I LOVE HOW SIMPLE AND EASY IT IS TO USE.”
